In the vicinity of Helena, where Hale and Chessman secure their water the streams are and have been for several months very low, not over fifty miners' inches of water, and much less running in their ditches. To back up his statements Judge Davis offered to take anybody to Lump guich to see for them selves. A party was made up last Saturday, intending to visit the place Sunday, but the trip was postponed until yesterday. Two aldermen, Judge Davis and his partner, Mr. O'Connor, William Lorey and an INDEPENDENT representative made up the party which left the city yesterday morning, going via Oro Fino guich. At Unionville a stream of water called Oro Fino creek was viewed, and this had about twenty inches of water. This is owned by Mr. Davis, who proposes adding it to his Lump guich supply. The drive was then continued up the mountains until Grizzis. concluded to be the work of an incendiary Lump guich supply. The drive was then continued up the mountains until Grizzly pass was reached, the ground all around ago. The building is insured for $700 continued up the mountains until Grizzly pass was reached, the ground all around being slightly covered with snow. At this point a force of men were seen working on Hale's ditch. Passing over the divide into a beautiful canyon, which is thickly tim-bered, Travis creek was soon reached, but this was dry, the first time such a thing was known to happen since civilization penetrated that region. Continuing on the drive, now about ten miles southeast of Helena, Red mountain, the highest peak in that vicinity of the Rockies was observed and admired by those who had not seen it before. It was covered with snow and still storming while the sun was brightly shining in Grizzly gulch. While on the summit an area of about thirty source miles summit an area of about thirty square miles could be seen, and every inch of that large expanse of territory drains its waters into Expanse of territory drains its waters into Lump and Grizziy guiches. The amount of water now flowing there is much less, it is claimed, than has ever been there before, but yet it is a good deal more than the total amount now being furnished to the city, and its quality is unquestionable. It is a living stream and no attempt has been so far made to husband it. tempt has been so far made to husband it Mr. Davis says it is more than ample t supply the city at present, and if reservoirs are built and feeders turned into it, he says he will have sufficient to supply a city of 75,000 inhabitants with water for all purposes. Should the city grow still larger he says the waters of Ten Mile could be easily and cheaply converted to Lump
